Ann is an American girl. She came to Japan with her family last month. Now she studies with Japanese students at a high school in Tokyo. One Sunday Yumi, one of Ann's friends, comes to her house.

Ann : Welcome to my home, Yumi!

Yumi : Hello, Ann. ①

Ann : Fine, thank you. And you?

Yumi : I'm fine, too. Your house is very nice.

Ann : Oh, thank you. ②

(They go into Ann's room.)

Ann : This is my room. And this is my sister Nancy.

Nancy : ③

Yumi : Nice to meet you, too. ④

Nancy : I'm fourteen. I'm a junior high school student.

Ann : Yumi, look at this picture. This is my brother John. He's a college student.

Yumi : Is he at home now?

Ann : No. He doesn't live with us. He is in England.

Yumi : Oh, really? Do many young people in America study in other countries?

Ann : ⑤ Not so many. John likes the history of the English language and Shakespeare.

Yumi : That's good.

Nancy : I don't like Shakespeare very much. His books are old.

Yumi : That's right. But we can learn a lot of important things from old books.

Ann : ⑥ I think so, too. John knows a lot of interesting words. ⑦ (learned / from / he / them) Shakespeare.

Yumi : I don't read his books. They are too difficult for me. But I can enjoy his movies. I like "Romeo and Juliet" very much.

Ann : Yumi, do you know "Shakespeare in Love"? It is the story of Shakespeare. It is also very interesting. I learned a lot of things about him from the movie.

Yumi : I found the DVD at a shop near the station. Let's watch it together.

Nancy : That's a good idea.
